Carcassonne

Dragon & Fairy

In this expansion for Carcassonne, a hungry dragon roams the countryside. Plan ahead to stay clear of the dragon's path, summon the fairy for protection or use the magic portal to regain lost features.

This expansion can only be played together with Carcassonne*. You can also combine it with other Carcassonne expansions. You can find clarifications on the rules at cundco.de/en/exp.*

Additional Setup

If you are playing with the mini-expansion The River (recommended), replace the source tile with the double source tile. Lay aside the double lake tile. Shuffle the rest of the river tiles face down (including the lake tile from The River). They form the river tile stack. If you are playing without The River, ignore the previous setup and return all river tiles to the box.

Shuffle the rest of the new land tiles into the other land tiles. Return 5 random land tiles face-down to the box.

Place the dragon and the fairy next to the playing area.

Each new game element is explained in relation to the 3 actions:

1. Place a land tile
2. Place a meeple
3. Score points

If an action is not explained in detail, the base rules apply.

The New River Tiles

1. Place a land tile

The double source and double lake tile each counts as 2 adjacent land tiles.

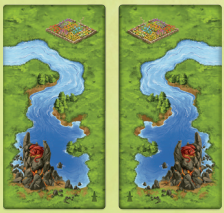

Double source tile

The double source tile is the new starting tile. If you place a river tile, you can decide at which of the two open river ends you want to place it.
If you draw the lake tile, you can place it at either end. After this, you can only place river tiles at the other end. Other than that, the usual placement rules apply.

Remember: River bends must not turn in the same direction twice in a row.

Double lake tile

The double lake tile is placed as the last river tile. You may flip it to any side beforehand. Note that you must place this tile according to the usual rules.

2. Place a meeple

After placing the double lake tile, you may place a meeple on its river bend half as usual (e.g. abbot or farmer). Then place the dragon on the dragon hoard (see The Dragon Hoard).

3. Score points

1. Place a land tile

2. Place a meeple

If you have placed a tile with a dragon hoard, you must take the dragon from its current location (initially from next to the playing area), place it on this tile and orient it (see Orienting the dragon). You may never place a meeple on (or move it onto) a tile with a dragon hoard.

3. Score points

Orienting the dragon

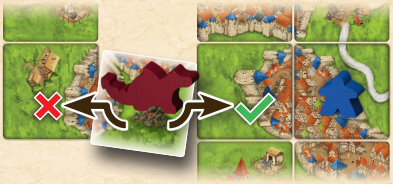

Sometimes you have to rotate the dragon and orient it towards one of 4 directions.
Choose a direction according to the following conditions:

- The dragon must face in the direction of a directly adjacent tile.
- The dragon must face in the direction of a meeple that is in a straight line in front, behind, to the left or right of the dragon. Gaps in the playing area interrupt its 'line of sight'. If there is no meeple in line with the dragon, you ignore this condition.

After the river is completed, the dragon can only face this direction, as no other tile is adjacent to the dragon.

You place a tile with a dragon hoard and place the dragon on it. Since a meeple is on a straight line with the dragon, the dragon must be oriented towards that meeple.

If several orientations are possible, you must choose one.

1. Place a land tile

The dragon awakens

If you draw a tile with a dragon symbol and the dragon stands on a tile in the playing area, the game is briefly interrupted: The dragon is hungry!

Before you place the tile, the dragon now performs exactly 2 dragon movements.

Dragon movement:

You must move the dragon in the direction in which it is currently facing (you may not reorient it beforehand). Move it straight forward tile by tile until there is no more tile directly in front of it. The dragon's movement ends on that last tile.

You must remove all meeple from tiles that the dragon enters and return them to their respective supply.

At the end of the dragon's movement, you must orient the dragon according to the usual rules.

If you have performed 1 dragon movement with the dragon, repeat all steps, moving and orienting the dragon so that it performs 2 movements in total.

You draw a tile with a dragon symbol. Before placing it, you move the dragon twice.

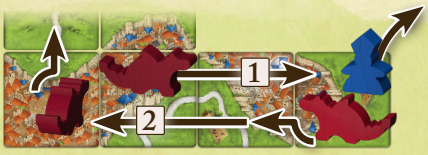

1. Move the dragon straight ahead according to its orientation until there is no more tile in front of it. Then you orient it towards the meeple (the farmer).

2. Move the dragon again according to its orientation. As it enters the tile with your farmer, you remove the farmer. On the tile where the dragon's movement ends, orient the dragon again. You decide to orient the dragon towards the blue meeple.

3. The dragon does not move any further.

You draw a tile with a dragon symbol.

1. Move the dragon straight ahead until there are no more tiles in front of it. You remove the abbot. When orienting the dragon, rotate it 180° so that it faces an adjacent tile.

2. Move the dragon again. Finally, orient the dragon.

After you have performed 2 movements with the dragon, you place the tile with the dragon symbol according to the base rules and proceed as usual.

Note: If someone draws a tile with a dragon symbol without the dragon being on a tile, the symbol is ignored.

2. Place a meeple | 3. Score points

The Fairy

2. Place a meeple

3. Score points

Placing the fairy

If scoring has been triggered, you first score points as usual.

After that: If you have completed at least 1 road or city this turn which did not score you any points, you may now place the fairy. It does not matter if someone else has scored points for the road or city. Take the fairy from its current location (initially from next to the playing area) and assign it to one of your meeple on the playing area. Place it close to your meeple.

This turn you have completed a road for which you did not score any points. This means you may assign the fairy to one of your meeple.

Scoring the Fairy

If a feature is scored in which the fairy is assigned to one of your meeple, you score 3 points, even if you do not score any points for the feature itself.

The fairy must never stand alone. Whenever the meeple with the fairy is moved or removed (e.g. by scoring points), you remove the fairy and place it next to the playing area.

You score 3 points for the fairy in the final scoring.

1. Place a land tile

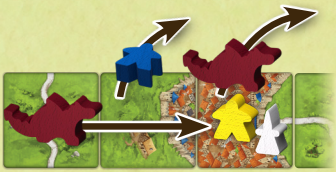

Protection from the dragon

The fairy can chase the dragon away!

If the dragon enters the tile with the fairy during one of its movements, the dragon is immediately removed from the playing area. The fairy itself and the meeple it is assigned to are not removed.

However, all other meeple on this tile are removed.

The owner of the protected meeple places the dragon in front of them (it comes back into play later). Thus the dragon movements end prematurely and the game proceeds as usual.

You have drawn a tile with the dragon symbol. The dragon moves straight towards the tile with the fairy. Along its way, the blue farmer is removed. Thanks to the fairy, the yellow meeple is not removed, but instead the dragon is. Since a yellow meeple was protected, Yellow places the dragon in front of them.

Bringing the dragon back into play

If the dragon is in front of you at the start of your turn, you must place it on a dragon hoard of your choice and orient it according to the usual rules.

After that you draw a land tile as usual.

Note: If you draw a tile with a dragon hoard, you place the dragon on it accordingly, even if it is in front of a player at that time.

The Magic Portal

1. Place a land tile

2. Place a meeple

After you have placed a tile with a magic portal, you may place a meeple on this tile as usual or place a meeple on any other tile in the playing area. When doing so, the usual placement rules for this meeple apply (e.g. the feature must not already be occupied). In addition, you may not place the meeple in completed features or on tiles with dragon hoards. The abbot is also considered a meeple.

You have placed a tile with a magic portal and decide to place a meeple on the incomplete and unoccupied monastery of another tile.

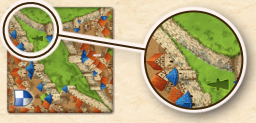

Important: Fields are never considered "completed", even if they are enclosed on all sides by roads, cities, etc.

3. Score points

Special Land Tiles

This is one single road which is not closed at either end.
It leads through a tunnel.
The bottom field is not separated by the road.
Neither is the field on top.

This corner separates the two fields.

Quick Overview

Dragon Hoard

Place the dragon on the dragon hoard and orient it accordingly. You may never place a meeple here.

Dragon Symbol

Before you place the tile: Move the dragon straight ahead and orient it. Then move and orient it again. If the dragon enters a tile with one or more meeple, remove them.

Magic Portal

You may place your meeple on a feature on any tile.
The usual placement rules for this meeple apply.

The Fairy

Type: Neutral figure
Placing rule: If you complete a road or city without scoring any points, you may assign the fairy to any one of your meeple in the playing area.
Special abilities: If the fairy is assigned to one of your meeple, you score 3 points when its feature is completed;
Dragon enters tile with fairy → your meeple and its assigned fairy are not removed → place dragon in front of you → at the start of your next turn: place it on any dragon hoard

The Dragon

Type: Neutral figure
Special ability: Orients itself towards directly adjacent tiles and meeple. In case of several options, choose one.
